STATEMENT

In October 2015 I completed a paid consultancy reviewing legislation in Mongolia in the extractive and resources sector, and the development of policy and policy recommendations for contract transparency and disclosure based on the public interest in that sector.

I was appointed as a judge in the worldwide mediation and negotiation competition in Vienna in June/July 2016.

Judge VIS Moot Arbitration Kuala Lumpur Malaysia March 2017.

Judge VIS Moot Arbitration Hong Kong, March 2017

Coach Notre Dame ICC Mediation and Negotiation competition Paris, February 2017

My specialty at the Bar is advocacy, arbitration, mediation and advising in my areas of interest.

I have engaged in mediation and arbitration both as mediator, arbitrator or as advocate for parties engaged in those processes since my admission to the Bar in 1978.

My experience in mediation ranges over a wide variety of matters including commercial, environmental, building and construction, tort claims, workers compensation claims, wills and estate administration, family law property issues and similar.

I was the appointed arbitrator in a number of commercial arbitrations under the New South Wales and the Victorian Commercial Arbitration Acts, where my aim was to ensure that the parties engaged in a process to achieve just, quick, efficient and cost effective resolution of disputes

The Land and Environment Court of New South Wales successfully implements its statutory conciliation, arbitration and mediation services and I have participated in numerous matters under s34 of its legislation in the mediation of development and environmental disputes..

My interests in Corporate Social Responsibility (CSR) flow from the recognition that CSR should be understood, known to and implemented as an important and lawful consideration by corporations and by States whose policies should include principles of CSR as an important consideration in granting consents, leases, licenses, permits or property rights for the exploitation of resources and in respect of other commercial/ industrial undertakings. A firm understanding of domestic and international environmental law and issues is crucial for the purpose of a responsible and meaningful recognition of corporate social responsibility and the potential impingement on recognized human rights. From that point of view the USA Supreme Court decision in Koible might be considered isolationist.

My interest in Corporate Governance flows from the requirement of corporate good governance for the purpose of the implementation of responsible corporate policy and strategy.

I was retained for the purpose of reporting and advising on corporate governance and oversight of 2 governmental and semi-governmental authorities in New South Wales Australia in respect of New South Wales' water resources, their discovery, exploitation, protection and distribution. .

I have been an advocate in hundreds of cases concerning planning, development and environmental law, particularly in the Land and Environment Court of New South Wales, including the judicial review of administrative decisions both on merit (s97) and under s123 of the Environmental Planning and Assessment Act 1979. I am familiar with the formulation, implementation and application of environmental law and policy, both domestically and internationally. I have acted in matters concerning the aboriginal community, specifically in respect of the occupation of Victoria Park at the time of the Olympic Games in Sydney in 2000 and in respect of the objection to subdivision development in the Byron Shire Council municipal area on the grounds of its cultural significance to the local aboriginal community.

I recognize and understand principles of environmentally sustainable development within a corporate context and I am favourably disposed to the recognition of the 'triple bottom line' in the application of corporate social responsibility principle.

I am an occasional lecturer in mediation skills and theory and arbitration, including international commercial arbitration, at University of Sydney Law School and the University of Technology Sydney.

My particular interest in arbitration is the comparative differences in the rules of various institutions and the possibility of the application of universal rules both in form, substance and application. The negotiation of numerous investment treaties in the Asia/Pacific region calls for closer attention to commercial arbitration and investor/state arbitration in those respects.
